Fund To Finance Trip To Israeli Seminar

A three-week seminar for United States, Canadian, English and Israeli scholars on the place of Israel in world affairs is being organized for next summer. This will be the first of what may become annual meetings at the Katznelson Institute, social science study center thirty miles north of Tel Aviv on the Haifa Road in Israel. Those invited from the three foreign countries are expected to be top-rank scholars, such as university presidents, professors, writers, churchmen and social workers, invited without regard to race or religion.

The American Friends of the Katznelson Institute and similar groups in England and Canada have undertaken to raise $75,000 by voluntary subscription, according to Aron Horowitz, dean of foreign studies at the institute. This money will be used to transport the seminarists to and from Israel, to maintain them while they are in that country and to finance their study and lecture tour there.

Mr. Horowitz, who is now in the United States to make the arrangements, told the New York Times that the seminar would be held from July 15 to August 5. Transportation to and from Israel will be by air. The Katznelson Institute, which is now in its fourth year and has sixteen buildings on a beautiful campus, will be headquarters for the seminar.

The discussions will be centered on the central theme of "Israel as a bridge between Orient and Occident." Israeli participants will include Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett and Zalman Shazar, Minister of Education. The visitors will do considerable traveling in [illegible] together and in small [illegible] according to their special [illegible] in Jerusalem, and a special reception has been planned for them by the legislative body. They will inspect pioneer youth camps, new industries, cooperative farms, schools and immigrant reception centers. The seminarians not only will be students of Israel life and culture, but being scholars themselves, they will be asked to interpret Western thought to the Israelis in lectures as they tour.

While the world seminar is in session, the second annual New York University workshop for 100 American university students will be held at the Katznelson Institute. The dates are July 7 to August 18. This workshop offers an intensive course in Israeli life given for American undergraduates and graduate students, who pay for the instruction and get credit for it in their home universities toward degrees.

The names of those to whom the "fellowships" to attend the world seminar will be offered are to be announced in the spring.

The Katznelson Institute also is planning to establish in September a co-educational boarding high school for students from English-speaking countries. This project is to enable parents abroad to send

J.D.C. Overseas Expert To Head U.P.A.

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, director general of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, has been named executive vice-chairman of the American campaign of the United Jewish Appeal, it was announced by William Rosenwald, Rudolf G. Sonneborn, and Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, National Chairmen. Having served as head of all relief and migration activities overseas during the most critical decade in the history of the Jewish people in Europe and Israel, Dr. Schwartz was granted a leave of absence by the JDC to become administrative head of the combined fund-raising campaign of the United Jewish Appeal in behalf of immigration and resettlement in Israel, rehabilitation and emigration in Europe and North Africa, and refugee adjustment in the United States.

Dr. Schwartz will succeed Henry Monter, who served as executive vice-chairman and director of the United Jewish Appeal during the twelve years since its establishment in 1939. During the period in which Mr. Monter occupied this post, the United Jewish Appeal raised more than $720,000,000. In the five years from January 1946 through 1950 inclusive, more than $565,000,000 of this total were raised. Mr. Monter submitted his resignation to take effect on January 1, in order to be in a position to organize and manage a new financing program for Israel, which will be inaugurated in the United States early next year.

Dr. Schwartz, the new executive vice-chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, is generally recognized as one of the foremost authorities in the world on the problem of Jewish refugees and mass migration and resettlement. As head of all of the overseas operations of the Joint Distribution Committee, Dr. Schwartz was personally responsible for the rescue of hundreds of thousands of Jews from Nazi persecution and for their resettlement in Palestine, the United States, Canada, Latin America and other countries. He has been the chief executive officer of a non-governmental agency. During the past twelve years he has directed a far-flung rehabilitation and relief and migration effort covering more than thirty countries and involving hundreds of thousands of human beings.

In 1927 Dr. Schwartz was awarded a Ph. D. by Yale University. In 1930 he served as an instructor at the American University in Cairo (Egypt) and as a member of the faculty of Long Island University. A year later he became the executive director of the Federation of Jewish Charities in Brooklyn, N. Y., a post he held until the end of 1938 when he went overseas as Director of European Operations for the Joint Distribution Committee. In 1945 Dr. Schwartz, at the invitation of President Truman, accompanied Dean Earl G. Harrison on an inspection tour of DP camps in the American zones of Germany and Austria. In the first comprehensive report presented to the American people on the situation of displaced persons, Dean Harrison and Dr. Schwartz joined in making the recommendation that 100,000 Jewish DPs be given the opportunity to go to Palestine.

Dr. Schwartz was the first re-

Riot In Berlin Against Nazi-Regime Actor

Several hundred Berliners blocked traffic on the Kurfuerstendamm and disrupted a première of Henrik Ibsen's "John Gabriel Borkman," but failed to halt the performance in which Werner Krauss made his first post-war appearance in Berlin with a company from the Vienna Burg Theatre. Herr Krauss was the target of the anti-Nazi demonstration because of his portrayal of two characters in the motion picture "Jud Suess" ("Jew Suess"), filmed during the Hitler regime under the sponsorship of Joseph Goebbels.

A strong cordon of police surrounded the court of the Theatre am Kurfuerstendamm, in which the play was presented under the auspices of the West Berlin Magistrat. They failed, however, to halt the first rush of the crowd toward the building. Glass doors to the lobby were smashed and several fist fights between the police and demonstrators resulted.

The resentment of the mob concentrated on Herr Krauss despite the popularity of his co-players, Kaethe Dorsch and Helene Thimig, widow of Max Reinhardt. Their popularity had been counted on to appease the public.

The storm aroused by the presence of Herr Krauss in the cast almost completely eclipsed the significance of the inclusion on the program of Walter Felsenstein as director of production. Herr Felsenstein is persona non grata in West Berlin because of his nomination for and acceptance of the role of "National Prizewinner" for theatrical direction by the Communist administration in the Soviet zone of Germany.

Appeals made over RIAS (Radio in the American Sector) by Mayor Ernst Reuther and Prof. Edwin Redslob, of the Free University, for moderation on the part of the public were only partially [illegible] tion of police for mass participation in the demonstration by the students' organization of the West Berlin University, although scores of students joined the throng individually.

The play, which began a half hour late, was well received by the audience, which included a large number of German Jews, says the New York Times.

Fritz Kortner, an American star of the German stage, had announced he was withdrawing from the leading role of "Don Carlos" because of what he termed a poison-pen campaign by a "tiny, vicious group of anti-Semites." He was threatened with physical violence.

U.R.B. WAS THIRD IN ISRAELI ELECTIONS

The United Religious Bloc emerged as the third leading victor in the municipal elections held throughout Israel. Polling more than 13% of the total votes cast, the religious bloc won representation in 37 out of the 43 areas in which elections were contested. This percentage is a half percent higher than that gained by the religious bloc in the Knesset elections.

Sum totaled, URB parties, Mizrachi, Hapoel Hamizrachi, Agudas Israel, and Poalei Agudas Israel, named representatives to 73 various municipal posts. The mandates were allocated as follows: Hapoel Hamizrachi, 38; Mizrachi, 14; Poalei Agudas Israel, 12; Agudas Israel, 6; other URB affiliates, 3. Significant changes in the political views of Israel's citizens were reflected in the voting of the 320,000 of the possible 550,000 voters. Although the Mapai held its lead by a small majority, the General Zionists gained a surprising victory, emerging as the second largest party. Mapam and Herut followed the religious bloc, which polled 41,420 votes.

Negotiations are now being conducted for the naming of mayors in various cities. There are good prospects that a URB candidate will be chosen as mayor of Jerusalem. Among the names being offered for this post are those of S. Z. Shragai, of Hapoel Hamizrachi, and Rabbi Wolf Gold, of Mizrachi. D. Z. Pinkas, Mizrachi leader, who was recently chosen in a countrywide balloting of the press as the most prominent member of the Knesset, is being suggested as vice-mayor of Tel Aviv.

Israel Accepts U.N. Role For Holy Sites

Israel accepted a moderate Swedish proposal for international control of the sacred sites in Jerusalem as "a fair and practical expression of the United Nations' responsibilities". Jordan, which shares occupation of the Holy City, argued that all the purposes of internationalization were now being well served.

Sweden's plan calls for limited control by the United Nations, confined to the holy places. The General Assembly decision of 1949, in contrast, provided for the full internationalization of the Jerusalem region, including a number of suburbs. Under the new proposal, Ha[illegible] project, the United Nations to insure the cooperation of Israel and Jordan, according to the New York Times.

Abba S. Eban, Israeli Ambassador to Washington, described to the Special Political Committee of the General Assembly his conception of this new role for the ancient city.

"Jerusalem would become the first place in the world where the United Nations would be continuously represented for the purpose of carrying out prescribed functions on behalf of the spiritual interest of the international community," he said.

He noted the extent of Israel's cooperation with Roman Catholic Holy Year pilgrims in recent months and observed: "It may well be that full security for the Holy Places could be maintained and developed without the institution of any special regime." Here Mr. Eban was in agreement with Ahmad Bey Touqan of Jordan, who contended that the Holy Places were safe, that free access was assured and that discrimination did not exist.

Touqan Bey told the committee, that Jordan opposed the internationalization of Jerusalem in any form. He described Jerusalem as "an Arab city," adding that it now formed "an integral part of an Arab kingdom, and so it shall remain by the will of God and the efforts of its inhabitants."

Mr. Eban, on the other hand, said Jerusalem was the "cradle of Israel's civilization that has now become the center and summit of the state of Israel in its modern revival."

These conflicting viewpoints were linked by Charles Malik of Lebanon. "It is inconceivable that if Israel should make Jerusalem its capital — and I might ask, is it or is it not? — and Jordan controls the holiest shrines within the same city's limit, it is inconceivable, I say, that this situation should be stable or will last long," he declared.

Dr. Malik, denouncing the Swedish plan, to which he said he was "unalterably opposed", also blamed the United States, Britain and France for the failure of last year's General Assembly decision. He argued that they should have applied pressure upon both Israel and Jordan.

"The only thing we can really do this year is to reaffirm very strongly the principle of internationalisation," declared Dr. Malik. "We must take more affective steps for its implementation and keep on doing so until Israel and Jordan accept it."

Plans for moderation and support of the Swedish draft were en-

N.Y. Mount Sinai Plan To Take Free Medical Care To Low Rental Families Hailed As Great Advance

Complete medical service will be provided without charge by Mount Sinai Hospital to all families who will occupy Carver Houses, a low rental project in upper Madison Avenue, after it is opened early in 1952. The novel experiment, which may become a model for other housing projects, was explained in a press conference by Herman T. Stichman, State Commissioner of Housing; Dr. Martin R. Steinberg, director of Mount Sinai; and Philip J. Cruise, chairman of the New York City Housing Authority.

The service will be dispensed from hospital quarters within the project, and if hospitalization is required, it will be provided at Mount Sinai. "We will treat any of those families who come to us voluntarily," Dr. Steinberg said. "There will be no flat assessment in the rental for this service, but we may charge small token fees, if these patients can afford them."

The service will be available not only to the 400 or more families who will occupy the project, but to about 100 families in the same economic bracket living just outside the project. Under the proposed plan, Mount Sinai will occupy, rent free, about 1,200 square feet of space in Carver Houses, an $18,000,000 development to be erected on a site extending from Park Avenue to Madison Avenue and from Ninety-ninth Street to 106th Street, says the New York Herald Tribune. Mount Sinai is at Fifth Avenue and 100th Street.

The hospital will use its space for a waiting room, physicians' office, and a lecture auditorium. Participating doctors will be assigned 100 families each and will be on call twenty-four hours a day. In the role of family doctor, each physician will counsel his families and practice preventive medicine through education of his patients. The educational program will include guidance and psychotherapy, discussion groups and lectures, Dr. Steinberg said.

"The opportunities in research which this plan affords us are numerous," he said. "I don't know yet what we'll learn, but we'll certainly know more about the technique of giving medical care and the effects of good housing on health. This undertaking may become a model plan for other housing projects and other hospitals throughout the country," he continued. "Our aim is to bring the hospital to these people — actually, physically. Right now, we have to wait until they get sick and come to the hospital. Under this plan, we'll be able to detect mental and physical illnesses before they really get started."

Mr. Stichman described the experiment as "one of the greatest advances in recent medical history." He added: "It helps point the way to bringing about better medical service with consequent higher standards of health, without bureaucratic control or socialization, for the large group of lower income and underprivileged families."

Dr. Steinberg said that the hospital has appropriated $5,000 toward establishment of the extension in Carver Houses and expects to expend $60,000 a year on the project at the start. He said Mount Sinai will seek federal and state funds to expand the program and also will appeal to philanthropic organizations for support.

He pointed out that the hospital provides medical care and hospitalization to all who apply, regardless of ability to pay. The innovation is that the low-income families will receive medical care, both preventive and curative, by their own family doctors, either in the project's medical center or in their own homes.

Carver Houses will be subsidized by the state to the extent of about $640,000 a year for fifty years, Mr. Stichman explained. Monthly rentals will run to about $9 a room for families who average incomes ranging from $35 to $45 a week.

Excerpts From A Report

BY MONROE ABBEY, PRESIDENT OF BARON DE HIRSCH INSTITUTE, IN MONTREAL

As a comprehensive social service centre, the Baron De Hirsch Institute offers within its three major departments a variety of help to meet the many needs arising out of our complex, industrial, urbanized community. A partial outline may serve to describe these services: financial assistance for temporary or long periods, owing to illness, age, unemployment, health; counselling for personal and social difficulties of individuals in relation to their marital partners, children, parents; medical social service in relation to health problems, the tubercular, the aged; homemaker service for temporarily disabled mothers, to help maintain families; foster home and adoption services for dependent and neglected children; protective work with the Juvenile Court and other agencies; the provision of a summer camp for children, and chaplaincy service to hospitals and institutions; reception and assistance to war orphans in their resettlement; meeting the rehabilitation requirements of former DPs; legal aid with regard to domestic and non-support problems; aid to applicants for pensions; technical aid to the agencies in the Federation vis-a-vis government bodies; administration of The Memorial Park Cemetery and assistance to volunteer societies in respect to the conduct of their cemeteries.

Central to all our work is the emphasis placed on the preservation and maintenance of family unity. Our caseworkers assist their clients in their intimate struggle of coping with otherwise overwhelming difficulties. The Agency provides resources of material assistance and individualized understanding. It often spells the difference to our fellow citizens in surviving or breaking down.

In 1949, there were 369 local families consisting of 489 adults and 292 children who received financial assistance for temporary or long periods of time. We received 244 QPCA reimbursements. In addition, 98 families, consisting of 300 individuals received guidance and support from our caseworkers dealing with individual and social problems; 14 transients received assistance during the year. Moreover, we handled 56 applications from elder citizens for admission to the OPH, six of whom were served after admission; 69 active tuberculous patients, Jewish and non-Jewish, were aided in extension [illegible] other necessary services given to the patients' families by us, or other sectarian agencies; 78 arrested cases of T.B. leaving the Sanatorium were followed up by our medical social worker, who provided essential after-care service in their rehabilitation.

Our homemakers served a total of 114 families, comprising 183 children, over temporary rough spots during which their mothers were unable to manage their homes because of confinements, acute illness, or other reasons for which short time service of this kind was essential to avoid the breakup of the home. Approximately 6,000 office and home interviews were required in order to serve the above families and individuals.

This department has also extended increasing service and relief to the immigrant families in Montreal for six months or longer, who need assistance to ride them over hurdles in their adjustment. Altogether some 88 families, consisting of 206 individuals, required financial assistance, and another 88 families composed of 216 individuals needed guidance in the use of other resources, facilities, or counselling. Nine children of immigrant families had to be placed by our Child Welfare department because of the breakdown of their families. They received 1,671 days' care. The expenditures incurred for these newcomers are fully reimbursed, except for administration and staff, by either the Canadian Jewish Congress or the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society depending on the basis on which they have come to Canada. A total of $28,702.60 was expended in assistance to this group. Approximately 3,000 home and office visits were required in rendering this assistance. The problems of this group of new citizens are many and suggest the difficulties ahead, should the economic conditions of our community change. In serving the newcomer, our agency truly represents the community's purpose, and thereby renews its original motivation for existence.

When families are broken temporarily or permanently because of the many problems of illness, death, separation, etc., the care of dependent, neglected children is the responsibility of this Department. Besides the provision of foster home care which constitutes the basic core of services, this department also offers specialized services in adoption for unwed mothers and childless couples, liaison work with juvenile courts and other institutions, and the summer facilities of [illegible] they serve a constructive purpose, to both local and immigrant children. As a result of closer co-ordination of agency programs, the responsibility for the administration of the Refugee Youth Project is also carried by a special unit in this Department.

During the year 1949 a significant rise took place in the number of local children coming into placement. 60 children came under our care, of whom 33 were never known to us previously. Many of these children suffer from permanent physical and mental handicaps, which we must deal with, owing to lack of appropriate facilities in the community. During this time 54 children were discharged from care to return to their own homes, and 5 adoptions were successfully completed. A total of 17,078 days' care were given to these children in the homes of our foster families whose devotion to these children must be acknowledged with great appreciation. 117 children enjoyed part or all of their summer holidays in our Sunshine Camp in the Laurentians. The supervision of these children required approximately 1800 home and office interviews.

Our work with the Refugee Youth Project since its inception in September 1947 really deserves a volume in itself. Suffice it to state that during the past year, 126 youth were received from overseas, making an aggregate total of 494 who came under our care by the end of 1949. At this time, the yeoman task performed by our Agency in helping these war orphans to adjust and establish a new life for themselves, in conjunction with Congress and other groups, is significantly revealed in the following figures: 281 of these youth no longer require our agency's assistance; about 213 are still active with us, of whom 102 require financial assistance of one kind or another. The rest need mainly guidance and sympathetic support in achieving a healthy integration within the community. It is our hope and conviction that, given improved economic conditions, a very small group will require extended agency help, apart from the 31 orphans who need protective guidance because of their tender years. 3,400 office and home contacts were required in assisting these youth from whom the Agency received complete reimbursement for the material and administrative costs of $154,374.73, incurred in this work, from the Canadian Jewish Congress.

The work of departments is closely co-ordinated with the rest of the agency's services. During the year, 2,125 office interviews and consultations were given in relation to legal problems and aid to pensioners. 74 Court cases secured our services. 238 QPCA applications were handled for our own departments, the Mount Sinai Sanatorium and the Old People's Home. In administering the cemetery department careful attention is given to the proper appearance and maintenance of the Memorial Park Cemetery and the co-ordination of the land owned by the Hebrew Sick Benefit Association. Fifteen men, women and children were interred in the Baron de Hirsch Cemetery during the year.

In rendering our account for the year, we do not close our books; the needs of human beings continue. The struggle for a better life requires organized service in enabling individuals to meet and overcome personal and social problems. In this way they achieve experience in the "art of solving problems and the ability to handle their own environment". The challenges that lie ahead for us in helping people to help themselves means even more consecration to the skills of understanding our neighbours, and increasing resources to meet the needs presented to us. An increase of unemployment is beginning to tax many private agencies and places a double burden on us. Governmental assistance will need to be enlarged and community wide responsibility must be aroused in coping with the problems of economic insecurity brought about by rises in the cost of food, clothing, fuel, and particularly rent.

In a word, we are grateful for having had the opportunity to serve our fellow men. If understanding one's neighbour is a precept that augurs well for the future of democracy, our agency and all those associated with us, have contributed well to that future, and with renewed conviction, we may look ahead to the challenges that face us.

Children are often criticized — and sometimes disciplined — for fidgeting, but doctors point out that movements are normal in children and that suppression of these natural movements is one of the important causes of fatigue and inattention, particularly in school children. Youngsters need to move about a bit in order to stay relaxed and comfortable.

All news and advertising omitted this week due to lack of space, will be run in next week's issue.

SEEKS SPREAD OF REFORM JUDAISM IN ISRAEL

Rabbi William F. Rosenblum, preaching at Temple Israel, 210 West Ninety-first Street, New York, recommended that Reform Jews send missionaries to Israel. He recommended also that Reform Jews in the United States demand that Reform Judaism have equality of opportunity in Israel "as the price of their continuing interest in and support of Israel."

"It is well for American Jewry to send millions and men to Israel to aid in its sound and secure foundation," Rabbi Rosenblum said. "It is important that American Judaism send spiritual missionaries to help in its religious renaissance. Let our Reform rabbis and congregations unite to send several missionaries to our movement to Israel. Thousands upon thousands are waiting there for our adaptation of the faith of our fathers."

NEW TRADE MINISTER TO GO AFTER INVESTOR

Yaacov Geri, Israel's new Minister of Trade and Industry, announced plans for streamlining his ministry to realize his suggested slogan that: "the investor is always right." He also disclosed that he planned to invite local "dollar a year men" to help him carry out his program. These aides would be chosen from within the country largely because of the language difficulties that would hamper outsiders, and because Israelis would be familiar with local business conditions.

Mr. Geri, who is the director of a chain of South African economic and development projects and who has experienced the red tape and other difficulties that confront investors in Israel, is determined to make the way easier.

"In spite of currency and other difficulties of which I am well aware, there is willingness on the part of many people all over the world to do something in Israel in

When asked during a press conference by a Tass correspondent, "What about trade relations with Russia?" Mr. Geri replied, "No trade with any quarter would be rejected by us."

Although the plan to organise the three local Jewish communities of Japan into a representative body has been delayed by the Korean war, which has also delayed plans for the rescue of Jews from China, the Jews in Japan are very conscious of their ties with their brethren abroad, says a report to World Jewish Congress headquarters. Their social and economic position has improved and they are on friendly terms with the Japanese population.

Dr. Samual S. Hullender, new chairman of the executive board officiated. He was assisted by Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the union, and Jacob Aronson, honorary chairman of the board. More than 700 persons, from more than twenty states and Canada, attended the ceremony.

Among them were representatives of ninety Reform congregations. Marching to the stone they deposited scrolls of greeting from their rabbis and the presidents of their congregations, temple Sisterhoods, Brotherhoods and youth organizations.

The procession, which opened the program, was led by Jonathan Wise, 3 years old, who deposited a volume entitled "Reminiscences of Isaac Mayer Wise", the founder of Reform Judaism in America, and the boy's great-grandfather. Jonathan was followed by his father, David, and grandfather, Rabbi Jonah B. Wise of Central Synagogue, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street.

Mr. Aronson read and deposited a resolution of gratitude to the late Dr. Albert A. Berg, whose gift in memory of his parents made construction of the building possible.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Church (Methodist), Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street, brought greetings on behalf of Christian congregations and deposited a copy of the United Nations Charter.

A message from President Truman with "cordial good wishes" said: "The world needs the living spirit of religion as never before. If the teachings of the prophets could be brought into the daily lives of each of us, we could realize quickly our fondest dreams of human brotherhood."

Referring to Dr. Berg, who was a philanthropist and at one time was president of the International College of Surgeons, Dr. Sockman said: "He was a healer. Here we are symbolizing healing forces. It is most appropriate that the Union House of Living Judaism should be established here. Not far from this spot is a building which carries the inscription 'The Gateway of a Continent.' The success of this cause is symbolic of the American spirit. From the soil of Divine Sovereignty have stemmed both our ideas of right and our ideas of our rights."

The Rev. Leo Baeck of London, president of the World Union for Progressive Judaism, was another speaker. The former Chief Rabbi in Berlin, he was freed by Americans from a Nazi concentration camp. He said: "Today the rehabilitation of mankind in God is the great common task, common to all religions."

Students Want Frats To Bar Bias By 1956

The student board of Columbia College announced it has recommended to Columbia University that October 1, 1956, be set as a deadline for college organizations to abolish written racial and religious barriers in their constitutions. Members of the board said the resolution was aimed specifically at seven of Columbia's sixteen fraternities. Copies of the resolution will go to Columbia's Committee on Student Organizations and to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of the university.

Although the resolution did not carry with it suggestions for enforcement, Gene Courtiss, chairman of the student board, said the university "if they so desire" could take action against groups which violate the deadline by revoking their charters, denying them use of university facilities and privileges — including the name "Columbia" in chapter titles —and by barring such groups from membership in Pamphratria, the campus inter-fraternity organization.

The student governing body took the action in response to a vote in May by the college student body, which put itself on record as favoring a deadline for the elimination of written race-bias clauses in campus organizations.

In February, the inter-fraternity council announced it had urged its members to work through their national organizations for the removal "as soon as possible" of membership restrictions based on race, creed or color.

Army Squads Help Israeli Immigrants

Maj. Gen. Yigael Yadin, Chief of the General Staff, sent Army sanitation squads, medical teams, engineers and other units to outlying districts to help immigrant dig in for winter. The immigrants now are living in tents mostly on the slopes of hills and their dwellings will be in the path of torrents sweeping down to the sea. They have been transferred from immigrant transit camps to make them self-supporting. These immigrants no longer receive food and clothing from the Jewish Agency for Palestine but are employed in afforestation works, road building and other public works.

General Yadin took action after receiving reports from Army commanders in outlying parts of the country. Some local commanders volunteered aid without waiting for instructions from headquarters.

The Army will organize supplies, transportation, cultural activities and entertainment. About 1,500 children are being separated from their families and removed to the Army camp for the winter.

Prescribes Happy Marriage, Children, Work, Play, Humour For Long Life

A happy marriage blended with equal parts of work and play and a measure of optimism are the ingredients of Dr. Simon R. Blatteis' personal prescription for a long life. Dr. Blatteis, a 74-year-old retired Brooklyn, N. Y., physician, quietly celebrated his golden wedding anniversary at a private party in a Miami Beach hotel and made his views on longevity known through a letter written to friends in Brooklyn.

The physician, who for fifty years practiced medicine and who was, until two years ago, consulting internist and pathologist at the Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn, seems well qualified to write on the subject of old age. He has a sister who is 81 and a brother who is 77. In total the three children have enjoyed 160 years of married life.

With regard to marriage, Dr. Blatteis wrote in his letter:

"It is definitely conducive to longevity, tending to establish regularity of living habits and developing a sense of responsibility. This brings out the best in a man.

"The presence of children, the closer bond between husband and wife, the planning for the future—all these produce a psychological harmony that keeps the glandular system properly adjusted and properly functioning. Thus is life prolonged."

Along with his happy marriage Dr. Blatteis attributes his own longevity to an additional proper blending of work and play, and adds, "After fifty years in the active practice of medicine I emphatically state that work, per se, does not shorten life."

As for the third ingredient of his prescription the physician observes that "All other virtues will lose their effect if worry is allowed to mix with them. And it is here that a sense of humor will dull the sharp edge of that destructive agent and to a great extent render it innocuous." His conclusion is that "A happy mixture of work and play, added to a natural optimism, provide an excellent foundation upon which to build and maintain the human mechanism."

The doctor and Mrs. Blatteis, who is 69, now reside in Great Neck, L. I. They have two children and four grandchildren. The physician retired two years ago shortly after a dinner had been given for him on the occasion of his fiftieth year of medical practice.

Besides his private practice Dr. Blatteis taught medicine for forty years and was a Professor of Medicine at New York University and the Long Island College of Medicine.

JORDAN BARS ISRAELI FOOD CONVOY

The fortnightly convoy to isolated Mount Scopus was again denied passage when it assembled at the Jerusalem-Jordan frontier post. No reason was given by Jordan authorities, and there was no previous indication that it might be stopped. Refusal to permit the convoy to enter Jordan was in defiance of the Oct. 14 order issued by Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief truce supervisor, after past refusals. Jordan also stopped the last regular convoy but allowed it to proceed a week later.

Jordanian, Israeli and United Nations representatives had agreed that there should be a convoy to take food and a change of guards to the Hebrew University compound and Hadassah Hospital, both of which resemble deserted villages at the moment. They were cut off from Jerusalem during the war and have remained little islands overlooking the city ever since.

The Jews Of Afghanistan

The backward country Afghanistan, in Central Asia, has a long tradition of Jewish connections. According to local legend, Afghana, the progenitor of the Afghan race, was a son of King Saul, and two branches of the inhabitants — the Durani and the Jusufsani — believe themselves to be the descendants of the lost Ten Tribes. Jews came to Afghanistan very early and the ruins of an ancient synagogue at Kabul are ascribed to the age of Nebuchadnezzar. However, the first community that can be traced with any certainty probably came from Persia as refugees from the persecution of Firus in the second half of the 6th century.

The present Jewish community of Afghanistan numbers about 5,000 souls and is concentrated in two of the largest cities of the country. Like their forebears, they, too, came as a result of the persecutions of the Jews in Persia and mainly consist of 16th century Marranos from Meshed. As elsewhere in the Orient, the Jews live in ghettos where they have been able to preserve their traditional way of life by trading in skins and Persian carpets, as the main method of maintenance. The inevitable Jewish shop-keeper is by no means absent, however. The non-Jewish authorities have from time immemorial restricted Jewish means of livelihood by the imposition of heavy taxes and by legislation forbidding Jews to engage in numerous branches of commerce.

The head of the community is the representative of the Jews before the authorities and is responsible for the conduct of his co-religionists, for their payment of taxes and for the general enforcement of the instructions and laws of the State. Generally, the Jews are entirely at the mercy of the King or local ruler who is almost invariably an anti-Semite. The influence of the Moslem priests on the King and his ministers is very strong and they have no hesitation about inciting the Moslem masses to attack Jews. Pogroms are frequent and are usually accompanied by robbery and murder as well as by the kidnapping of Jewish children and their forcible conversion. Constituting a very small minority, the Jews have no means of self-protection.

The terrible pogroms of five years ago drove scores of Jewish families to leave Afghanistan for India in the hope that from there they could emigrate to Israel. Lack of means, however, prevented them from reaching their goal and for many months they were a prey to hunger and privation. The Indian Government did not want to maintain them and the danger of their extradition to Afghanistan was very real. Fortunately the Jewish Agency was able to intervene and prevent the expulsion. With the establishment of the State, the troubles of these Jews came to an end and they soon found themselves citizens of Israel.

Afghanistan Jewry has been yearning for redemption for many generations. So far political considerations have prevented any aliyah from Afghanistan itself. During the past few months however the pressure of persecution has risen considerably and all Israel is anxiously awaiting the reply to the request of the World Jewish Congress to annul the prohibitions on Jewish immigration.

Oldest N. Y. Congregation Observes 125th Year

Jews and Christians were called upon by the Right Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, retired Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, to "arouse themselves" to the dangers of Communism, totalitarianism and despotism "wherever and whenever and under whatever form they manifest themselves." Bishop Gilbert spoke at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel culminating a month-long observance of the 125th anniversary of Congregation Bnai Jeshurun, second oldest Jewish congregation in New York State.

"We have a desperate fight on our hands right now if we are to preserve the freedoms that have given this country its place among the nations of the world," he declared. Bishop Gilbert cautioned the 600 dinner guests not to ignore the fact that "here in our own land forces and influences are at work today which would deprive us of the freedoms that have been on for us — freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom to live one's own life and freedom to worship according to the dictates of one's own conscience."

Other speakers included Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Abba Eban, Israeli Ambassador to the United States; Msgr. Philip J. Furlong, representing Cardinal Spellman, and Dr. Israel Goldstein, rabbi of the congregation.

Also participating were Dr. David de Sola Pool, Rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, the nation's oldest and "parent" of Bnai Jeshurun; and Cantor Jacob Schwartz and Associate Rabbi David H. Panitz of the congregation.

Reporting on a recent visit to Persia, a commentator of Israel radio drew a distressing picture of the ghetto of Isfahan with its appalling poverty and its ill-paid and poorly qualified teachers. He said that one Jewish child in three suffered from eye diseases. Reviewing the development of Jewish emigration from Persia, the commentator said this had become legal since February 1950 owing to the effort of "a small group of friends and loyal advisers in the highest circles of the Persian government who, with the aid of a few courageous Zionists, had brought about recognition." He paid tribute to the Persian government's decency and understanding in condoning the formerly illegal, but unavoidable activities linked with migration.

The best way to avoid accidents in organized sport or at play, it is stated in the magazine, Health, is to be prepared both physically means absent, however. The non- and mentally. Keep fit.

Beware of unpasteurized milk! Drink pasteurized milk only because pasteurization eliminates germs which frequent raw milk.

Lemcovitch, took place at Bnai Jacob Synagogue, on November 5, at six o'clock, Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rabbi, officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white slipper-satin gown, fashioned with a Victorian neckline, fingertip-length sleeves, and detailing on the hipline, and a full skirt, with a two-yard train, the satin being appliqued with tulle rosettes. She had a rhinestone and pearl-beaded headdress, with a white tulle illusion veil reaching around, and over, the train; and carried an orchid, with a Bible. Miss Leonora Bard, cousin of the bride, as matron of honor, and her only attendant, was gowned in lavender-shaded tulle, with satin trimming, and made with a strapless neckline, with a satin bolero jacket. She had a matching headdress, with a short veil, and carried Talisman roses. Frank Lemco, brother of the groom, was best man; and the ushers were: Louis and Harry Bard, brothers of the bride; H. Hartman, C. Burman, F. Bailis, and F. Coppel. The decorations were composed of pom-poms, roses, carnations, and palms; with seasonal flowers in variety. "Because" was sung. Receiving, at the Synagogue, the bride's mother, Mrs. Bard, wore a blue faille strapless gown, with a blue lace jacket, and blue lace trimming, and had a blue feather hat, with a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Wise, mother of the groom, wore a grey and sand-colored brocaded dinner gown, with a sand-colored feather hat, and had a corsage of yellow roses. The bride's table held two large arrangements of flowers; and vases of variegated flowers decorated the smaller tables. Members of the Y. Minstrel Show cast, of which Mr. Lemco, the groom, is a featured performer, entertained after the dinner. The bride and groom spent their wedding trip in New York, the bride travelling in a navy-blue suit, with matching accessories, and a black lamb coat. They are living at 6156 Sherbrooke Street West. Mr. and Mrs. E. Pruzansky, and Mrs. A. Lachtermun, and daughter, Shirley, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mrs. A. Zaloff, of Bayonne, N. J.; and B. Colman, of Long Island, N. Y.; were wedding guests.

The child who grows up in a family where the atmosphere is one of continued bickering and quarreling is likely to develop, as he grows older, a feeling of being unwanted and unloved that may affect his adult character. If there must be family arguments, save them until the children are not present.

Seminary Awards Degrees For Democracy

The Jewish Theological Seminary of America awarded honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws to Nelson A. Rockefeller, president of the American International Association for Economic and Social Development; Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and Roger W. Straus, co-chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The presentations were made by Dr. Louis Finkelstein, president of the seminary, in New York. The degrees were awarded because of the recipients' outstanding contributions to the advancement of democratic principles in the United States and abroad.

Before the ceremony, the board of trustees and other officials of the seminary proposed the calling of a world conference of religious thinkers and scholars "to seek the road to freedom and peace."

Mr. Rockefeller, speaking for the three degree recipients, indorsed the idea for a world conference as "a most interesting idea which might contribute much to the clarification of the issues of our day." Mr. Rockefeller said that institutions of learning and religion have an indispensable function and a primary obligation of interpreting America to the world. He appealed for unity and understanding among all religions.

"Learning and religion, which above all should be the forces uniting men, have at times been guilty of dividing them," Mr. Rockefeller said. "Such confusion of purpose might have been fraught with limited peril in earlier days. Today, disunity and misunderstanding among religious and educational leaders threaten the very foundations of our civilization. The time has passed when we can afford mutual suspicions and rivalries in the counsels of our intellectual and spiritual guides. The moral law which dominates the affairs of political groups applies with equal force, and perhaps with even greater force, to the spiritual and intellectual organizations of men."

Dr. Grayson L. Kirk, provost of Columbia University, also spoke.

The Production Code Administration, the film industry's self-regulative organization headed by Joseph I. Breen, has denied its seal of approval to J. Arthur Rank's British film, "Oliver Twist." The code office declined to comment on the reports, however, saying that by policy its members discuss motion pictures only with their producers or distributors. The release of "Oliver Twist" has been delayed for more than a year in the United States because of alleged anti-Semitism in the treatment of the villainous Fagin of the Dickens story. Eagle-Lion is expected to distribute "Oliver Twist" in America.

Inner Voices

In every man there is an inner voice calling that individual to do what is right and just. Because man is a child of God he must endeavour to fulfil the God-like qualities of righteousness and justice. This inner voice is called conscience. Every human being has a conscience. He may at times suppress it but ultimately conscience will sit in judgment and assert itself. Only when man has reverted to the beast can it be said of him that he is conscienceless.

When the brethren of Joseph sold him in slavery and brought his torn garment to Jacob as supposed evidence that Joseph was no more, the old father wept. Little did the brethren believe that in all probability they scorned conscience. But the day did come when these brethren had to appear before the man they had wronged and ask forgiveness, hoping and praying that Joseph would not avenge the wrong done to him. No one can escape conscience, and this voice is one of the great realities of life. Richard the Third wanted the English throne. He obtained his ambition at the expense of friends and patriots, but the day came when he least expected conscience to attack him, and he cried, "God have mercy".

Along with the voice of conscience one must ever hearken to the voice of reason. For conscience by itself is an uncertain guide in life. Blessed are the men and women who are faithful to the two inner voices, conscience and reason. When the voice of conscience suggests, the voice of reason can correct the promptings of conscience. For conscience alone may at times lead to error.

Then there is the group conscience which can attitudinize the individual and cause him to do wrong. Torquemada possessed a churchianity conscience and truly believed that in persecuting Jews he was performing what was right. When the Jews of Amsterdam excommunicated Spinoza, one of the loveliest sons of the Synagogue, they followed a Jewish conscience. They failed to reason and rendered a disservice to the cause of Israel. And, of course, Protestants in their prejudices, follow a so-called Protestant conscience.

Hence, the import of reason in all life's dealings. Alas, we are living in an age when truth is so often crucified; where peoples' minds are propagandized with all sorts of poisonous thoughts. How all the more urgent it is that we cultivate the mind and learn to think through for ourselves the problems with which we are challenged. The faith in reason must be recaptured if civilization is to be saved. Every community has the privileged who are of self-interest, who wish to have and to hold. They are selfish and unconcerned with the masses. Every community too has its "crackpots", and the frustrated members of the lunatic fringe of society. Therefore, good people who are guided by conscience and reason must stand at the helm of things and advance the cause of humanity.

Alas, too often the good fail to assert themselves and evil people come to power and bring unhappiness in the world. This explains the rise of Hitler. People possessed of reason and conscience did not take this lunatic seriously. They laughed but failed to enter into combat in the cause of righteousness and, behold, the tragedy and misery which Hitler perpetrated upon the world!

presentative of a voluntary relief agency to be admitted to Poland and Hungary. In both these countries he inaugurated wide-scale relief and rehabilitation programs. His testimony in Washington in January, 1948, before the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry again underscored the need of the Jewish DP to find a haven in Palestine. In his capacity as director general of the Joint Distribution Committee, Dr. Schwartz has toured all parts of Europe and Israel, and has very closely studied the problems of Jewish communities in all parts of the world. He made his last visit to Israel as a member of the delegation of American leaders which conferred with Prime Minister Ben-Gurion in Jerusalem early in September (1950) regarding a new three-year economic development program for the Jewish State.

With his resignation from the United Jewish Appeal, Mr. Montor completes 25 years of service in behalf of Israel and aid to Jews in other parts of the world. A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, Ohio, he first became affiliated with organized Jewish efforts in 1925 when he joined the executive staff of the Zionist Organization of America. Subsequently he served as executive director of the United Palestine Appeal and of the American Zionist Emergency Council. In January 1939, with the establishment of the United Jewish Appeal, he was named executive vice-chairman of the new organization.

Recently he played a major role in the formulation of plans both in Jerusalem and in the United States for a three-year program to obtain $1,000,000,000 in the United States for the economic development of Israel and for the absorption of more than 600,000 additional immigrants. Founder of the Palcor News Agency, Mr. Montor is a former member of the Foreign Correspondents Association. In his new capacity, Mr. Montor will have full responsibility in the United States for the flotation of a bond issue in behalf of the Government of Israel.

Those who have been faithful to the inner voices of conscience and reason have made ideals possible in the world. They, in faithfulness, sacrificed themselves that humanity might grow in soul. These have often known persecution but they had the joy of personal satisfaction in having been true to the highest and to God. This was the lot of Moses, Amos, and Jesus, and of Socrates.

Men of conscience and reason were these and, faithful to these God-given inner voices, they fought stupidity. Truly they gained immortality while living. These are not dead even today. Millions throughout the world bless these names and are inspired to follow their example in consecrated service to fellow-men. Because ours is an age weighed down by hypocrisy and the darkness of prejudice, it is of urgency that men and women employ conscience and reason and thus find blessings and in turn bring blessings to fellow-man.

He said Herr Krauss was "very popular, and rightly so." Mr. Kortner, 57 years old, lives in Santa Monica, Calif. He plans to fill an engagement in Munich before returning to the United States in February.

The British delegate maintained that since the inhabitants of both sections of Jerusalem had become blended into the political, economic and social structure of the city it would be undemocratic if not impossible to impose an international regime over them.

On the request of the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, an affiliate organization of the World Jewish Congress, the Italian Ministry of Justice has issued a circular to the presidents of all courts of appeal giving a clear explanation to the text of two laws governing the issuance of death certificates regarding war victims. The Union of Italian Jewish Communities some time ago succeeded in having extended to Jewish deportees the legal provisions which grant fiscal and procedural privileges to missing soldiers. The Ministry's circular, it is hoped, will enable the enforcing authorities to apply the laws without the misunderstandings which have in some instances arisen in the past, when their application to Jewish cases was sometimes doubtful.
